The applicable price will be the one in force at the time of contracting or renewal of the plan, and may be determined:

- (i) by particular agreement between the parties, implemented by means of a contract, commercial proposal or accepted formal quotation, or
- (ii) through the direct acquisition of publicly available plans on the official website <https://adamoservices.co>, in which case the published price will be understood as comprehensive, binding and enforceable.

In compliance with the provisions of paragraph c) of article 50 of Law 1480 of 2011, ADAMO guarantees that the price reported will include the total value of the service, all applicable taxes (including VAT), and any additional charges derived from its provision. Additional charges not expressly informed or authorized by the Client will not be accepted.

The Client undertakes to consult the economic conditions of the service beforehand and to verify that the value corresponds to the selected plan before confirming any request or purchase.

9. PAYMENT MECHANISMS AND CONDITIONS

The Client may make payment for the contracted services through the only means authorized by ADAMO, which vary according to the type of account assigned:

- For Customers with PAY credentials linked to their ID account, the cost of the service may be covered by automatic discount of the available balance.
- For Customers who only have an ID account, monthly invoices will be generated, which must be paid exclusively by interbank transfer to the accounts registered in the contract signed between the parties.

In no case will cash payments, direct consignments, money orders, or transactions made through unauthorized channels be accepted. ADAMO will not ask for advance payments, partial payments, or transfers via phone calls or text messages. Any request of this nature should be considered fraudulent, and should be reported immediately to the official contact email.

ADAMO will issue and send the respective electronic invoice to the email registered by the Client, in compliance with the Tax Statute and its regulatory regime. The invoice will contain the Client's data, the detail of the service provided, the billing period and the total value with the applicable taxes. In the event that the payment is made through an authorized gateway, the invoice may be issued in the name of said processing entity.

The Client undertakes to keep the invoice as a valid support of the commercial relationship for accounting, contractual and tax purposes. Any inconsistencies must be communicated to ADAMO within five (5) business days of receipt of the document.

10. VOLUNTARY CANCELLATION AND REQUEST FOR REFUND BY THE CUSTOMER

The Client may request the cancellation of the purchase of a digital service contracted through the ADAMO Platform, exclusively for reasons attributable to their voluntary decision, and provided that the service has not been activated or executed in whole or in part. This request must be submitted within a maximum term of twenty-four (24) calendar hours from the confirmation of payment.

For validity purposes, the request must be submitted in writing to ADAMO's official email: contact@adamoservices.com, which is the only channel enabled for receiving cancellation and refund requests. Requests sent by other means will not have legal effects or interrupt the established deadlines.

The application must be submitted by the payment holder, and include as essential requirements:

1. Bank certification issued in the name of the holder of the down payment;
2. Valid identity document, in the case of natural persons;
3. Certificate of existence and legal representation valid no more than 30 days, in the case of legal entities;
4. Clear indication of the service you wish to cancel;
5. Order number or reference of the payment made.

The omission or incomplete submission of any of these documents will automatically suspend the procedure, without prejudice to the Client's being able to resume it once all the requirements have been completed.

Once the application has been received, ADAMO's legal department will proceed with the assessment of provenance, which will be based on the following criteria:

- The contractual conditions previously accepted by the Client;
- The type and modality of the service purchased;
- The technical, operational or legal status of execution, activation or access to the service;
- The existence of previous actions by the Client that imply effective or partial use of the service (e.g., activation of credentials, initiation of verification flows, opening of sessions, etc.).

If the digital service has been executed, accessed or activated in whole or in part – including any interaction that involves its technical, functional or contractual activation – no cancellation or refund will be applicable, in accordance with the provisions of numeral 7 of article 47 of Law 1480 of 2011, which excludes the right of withdrawal in cases in which the execution of digital content or services has begun with the prior consent of the consumer.

If the request is considered admissible, and it is verified that there has been no execution of the service, ADAMO may refund the amount paid, deducting a sum for administrative, operational and contractual expenses. This sum may consist of a fixed value and/or a percentage of the total paid, according to the technical and accounting evaluation of the case.

The percentage or value to be discounted will be determined at the discretion of ADAMO based on objective criteria such as:

- Payment processing costs;
- Administrative resources aimed at the failed activation of the service;
- Technology costs associated with creating credentials or accounts;
- Operational dedication of the support team or technical configuration.

The Client declares to know and accept that this deduction will be necessary to guarantee the sustainability of the service and proportionality in administrative management.

In any case, if the cancellation and refund request is admissible, the refund will be made within a maximum period of fifteen (15) calendar days, counted from the date on which the Client has delivered all the complete and valid documentation required for this purpose.

11. INDEMNITY

Users and Clients expressly accept that they will be solely responsible for the use they make of the ADAMO Platform, as well as for any conduct or omission that directly or indirectly affects ADAMO, its directors, employees, commercial partners, contractors or licensors.

Accordingly, they agree to indemnify and hold harmless ADAMO from and against any claim, demand, action, loss, damage, injury, penalty, administrative, contractual, tort or any other liability, including reasonable legal costs (attorneys' fees), resulting from:

- (i) The improper, illegal or contrary to these Terms and Conditions of the services offered on the Platform;

- (iii) Infringement of the intellectual property rights, privacy or any other rights of a third party;
- (iv) The provision of false, inaccurate, incomplete or fraudulent information;
- (v) The use of the Platform for illicit, fraudulent, discriminatory or contrary to public order purposes.

This indemnification obligation includes, but is not limited to, ADAMO's legal defence in any process, investigation or administrative or judicial proceeding arising from the aforementioned facts, except where ADAMO is exclusively at fault.

Limitation of technical liability: ADAMO does not guarantee the continuous availability or uninterrupted operation of the Platform, which may be affected by maintenance, system failures, Internet outages, force majeure, fortuitous events or other external events.

Consequently, Users and Clients expressly waive their right to file claims for loss of profit, loss of opportunity or indirect damages, arising from interruptions in the service for reasons not attributable to ADAMO.

The Platform is provided on an "as is" and "as available" basis, without express or implied warranties of merchantability, fitness for a particular purpose, or ongoing performance, except for those that cannot be excluded under applicable Colombian law.

12. PERSONAL DATA

ADAMO, in compliance with Law 1581 of 2012, Decree 1377 of 2013 and other regulations that regulate the personal data protection regime in Colombia, processes personal data within the framework of its commercial, contractual and technological operations. The following are the general guidelines that apply:

12.1 Personal Data Processing Policy

The processing of personal data provided by Clients and Users is governed by the provisions of ADAMO's Personal Data Processing Policy, which is published on the official website: <https://adamoservices.co/>. This policy contains the principles applicable to the processing, the rights of the owners, the procedures for exercising them, and the general purposes associated with the use of the information collected.

12.2 ADAMO as Data Controller

In cases where ADAMO directly collects personal data from its Clients or Users (e.g. when creating an account, making a payment or filling out a contact form), it acts in its capacity as Data Controller, which means that it defines the purposes and means of the processing. In these scenarios, ADAMO ensures that it has the necessary authorizations, and applies appropriate security and confidentiality measures for the protection of the information.

12.3. Legal relationship in the B2B model and role as a Data Processor

In the B2B service provision model, ADAMO acts as a technology provider and Personal Data Processor, under the terms established by Law 1581 of 2012 and its regulatory standards. This means that the personal information used for the authentication processes, identity validation and other services offered through the Platform, is collected directly by the Clients, who hold the status of Data Controllers. ADAMO only processes this information on behalf of its Clients, in accordance with their documented instructions and within the framework of the purposes previously defined and authorised by the Account Holders.

Consequently, ADAMO will not be responsible for the legality, veracity or sufficiency of the consents collected by the Clients, nor for the scope of the information provided. The responsibility for ensuring that the end user's prior, express and informed consent has been validly obtained rests solely with the Customer, including in relation to the sending of messages through digital channels, the collection of sensitive or biometric data, and the authorization for the international transmission of data, where applicable.

As a prerequisite and essential to enable any data processing flow under this model, Clients must enter into a personal data transfer contract with ADAMO, which regulates the purposes of the processing, the required security measures, the confidentiality duties, the traceability of the data, the obligations in the event of security incidents and the rules applicable to cross-border processing. among other essential aspects. Without the existence of such an agreement, ADAMO reserves the right to refrain from initiating or continuing any operational process involving data processing on behalf of the Client.

13. LEGAL VALIDITY OF ELECTRONIC ACTS AND ELECTRONIC SIGNATURES

All acts, contracts, notifications, acceptances, consents, declarations, registrations and any other expression of will carried out through the ADAMO Platform, whether electronic, remote or non-face-to-face, enjoy full legal validity, in accordance with the provisions of Article 5 of Law 527 of 1999, which enshrines the functional equivalence between data messages and traditional written documents.

By virtue of this equivalence, the parties involved in the digital transactions executed through ADAMO, including ADAMO, the Clients and the Users, expressly acknowledge that the data messages generated, stored or transmitted through the Platform have the same probative value and binding force as a physical document signed in handwritten form.

Likewise, when the incorporation of an electronic signature is required for certain legal acts, ADAMO uses its own solution called ADAMOSIGN, which complies with the requirements set out in Article 4 of Decree 2364 of 2012, guaranteeing the principles of:

- Authenticity: The identity of the signatory is verified through technological mechanisms that ensure that the person who electronically signs a document is who they say they are. ADAMOSIGN employs authentication systems based on biometric data, unique tokens, and contextual validation.
- Integrity: The content of the data message is protected from unauthorized alterations after the moment of signing. To this end, ADAMOSIGN implements a traceability and verification system through Blockchain technology, which generates a unique and immutable hash associated with the signed document, allowing its status, history and date of signature to be verified.

This technological infrastructure ensures that the documents signed through the Platform have full probative value and are enforceable against third parties, administrative and judicial authorities, without prejudice to the legal exceptions that govern each case.

In any case, the parties involved accept that the expression of will made by electronic means within the Platform is understood as a full and valid expression of consent, with legal effects equivalent to face-to-face acts.

14. RESPONSIBILITY

ADAMO executes its services under a regime of obligation of means, which implies that it undertakes to make its best technical, operational and legal efforts to provide the contracted service diligently, but without guaranteeing a specific result or the absolute absence of failures, especially in processes that depend on technological, operational or external factors.

Consequently, ADAMO will not be responsible for interruptions, delays, errors, deficiencies, impossibility of access, slowness in the provision of the service or any other affectation when this is attributable to, among others:

- Force majeure or fortuitous events;
- Failures in communication networks, internet providers or technological infrastructure of third parties;

- Deficiencies in the information provided by the Client or User;
- Non-compliance attributable to third parties or processors contracted directly by the Client;

ADAMO's liability, if legally attributable, will be limited in any case to the amount actually paid by the Client in the calendar month immediately prior to the event giving rise to the claim, without the recognition of loss of profit, loss of opportunity, consequential damage or any other type of indirect or consequential damage.

The Client and the Users accept that the use of the ADAMOID Platform involves a digital environment subject to inherent risks, and exempt ADAMO from any claim arising from expectations not expressly contemplated in the contractual framework or in these Terms and Conditions.

This stage of direct settlement will be carried out within a maximum period of forty-five (45) calendar days, counted from the receipt of the first written communication that formally states the dispute. During this period, the parties will exchange comments by e-mail, preferably using the e-mails registered in the contractual relationship and ADAMO's institutional e-mail: dataprotection@adamoservices.co.

If after this period a satisfactory solution is not reached for both parties, the dispute may be submitted to the ordinary Colombian jurisdiction, in accordance with the rules of territorial and functional jurisdiction established in the General Code of Procedure. For these purposes, the Client and the User expressly accept the exclusive jurisdiction of the judges of the Republic of Colombia and waive the right to invoke foreign jurisdiction or arbitration not expressly agreed in writing between the parties.

16. INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY AND RESTRICTIONS ON USE

- Law 44 of 1993 (amendments to the Colombian copyright regime);
- Law 603 of 2000 (duties in intellectual property of joint-stock companies);

- International standards ratified by Colombia in the field of intellectual property.
